

Three Persons Give Books to College Library

Mrs. Foster Contributes
Her Husband's Books;
Administrators Give.

The library of the College is richer because of gifts in books that have been made to it. Recently three gifts have been placed and are ready for use, those of President J. W. Jones, Mr. Uol W. Lankin, president emeritus of the College, and Mrs. Henry A. Foster, widow of the late Dr. Henry A. Foster, former head of the Social Science department.

Mrs. Foster's gift consists of the professional library of Dr. Foster. These books have been catalogued and placed in the regular working library of the College, available for the use of all persons who use the library. Each is marked by a bookplate so that users may know when they are using a book which either belonged to Dr. Foster or was given to the library in his honor.

The College has followed the custom of giving the library a selected number of books to honor deceased members of the faculty. Others who have been so honored are Mrs. Alice R. Perrin, former dean of women; Mr. Charles R. Gardner, former head of the Music department; Mr. C. A. Hawkins, former professor of Latin; Mr. C. C. Leeson, former head of the Biology department; Mr. Merton W. Wilson, former professor of chemistry; and Mr. Hubert Garrett, former professor of social science.

Books Have Plates.
"Part of the personal and professional library of Uol W. Lankin, president of the College, 1921-45 and given by him to the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College, Maryville, Missouri," reads the bookplate that marks each book of the gift to the library by Mr. Lankin.

These books have been placed on the open shelves in the Reading Room, just to the right as one enters the room. They have not been catalogued according to subject matter but will be kept as a library intact. Mr. Lankin's gift also includes magazines, which later will be bound and made available for use.

Books Are Professional.
When President Jones gave up teaching entirely and took over administrative work completely, he gave the library his professional books, asking that they be made available for regular student use. They are being catalogued and will be placed on the stacks in the usual manner of new acquisitions to the library. No complete list of them was available at the time of going to press.

Psychology Class Sees Krug School

Miss Katherine Franken Is Teacher of Group Which Goes on Trip.

Miss Katherine Franken's class in adolescent psychology visited the Krug Opportunity School in St. Joseph, Wednesday, May 1. The class observed the academic work in the morning and the activity work in the afternoon.

The Krug School is a part of the St. Joseph school system. It has an enrollment of over two hundred. It is an opportunity school which every effort is made to give each individual help so that he may progress at his own rate. Groupings are made according to chronological age but within the groups different texts are studied.

The primary children of the school take part in learning household tasks and in keeping their own room clear. The room is furnished with colorful small furniture which was made by the older boys. These boys are now building a new hog house on the grounds.

There are classes in woodwork, type-setting and printing, and shoe repairing. The girls sew and make rugs and have their own beauty shop.

Mrs. Utz, a graduate of Iowa University, explained to the psychology class her work in the correction of speech defects.

Character building and cleanliness are the first aims of the school. Miss Myrtle E. Miller has been principal of the school for more than fifteen years and has seen the school housed in several buildings. The present building is quite old and has no gymnasium. Every available space is used, now that the building is over-crowded.

Thirteen students of the class and Miss Franken made the trip to St. Joseph in a school bus. Lunch was eaten at the Oakford Tea Room. Those students making the trip were Maxine Fehrmann, Martha (Continued on page 4.)

Dance Club and Women's Ensemble Are Well Received in Their Joint Program

A joint recital that ran the gamut of the moods, from the frivolous style of the dance "Impertinence," realistically interpreted by Sue Philip, to the serious theme of the Philharmonic, "Ole Ark's a Mover-in!" was presented by the Dance Club and the Women's Ensemble, in the College auditorium on the evening of May 1.

The program was divided into ten parts. The Women's Ensemble, under the direction of Mr. Ralph Hartzell, opened the recital with two gay lilted pieces, "Wings," by Buchanan and "Sleigh," by Kountz. As the first composition of their ninth annual presentation of the Dance Club, under the direction of Miss Winice Ann Carruth, offered the red, white, and blue "Heroique" featuring Dorothy Harshaw as soloist.

"Dreams," composed by the director of the ensemble, Mr. Hartzell, highlighted the third section, which also included a folk song, "Poor Wayfaring Stranger." A group of dances based on feminine moods followed. Patti Bosch introduced the impudent mood "Flirtation." "Patterened After a Woman's Mind," cleverly interpreted by Elaine Woodburn, was of special significance as the music was written by Miss Alice Illesley, a former member of the College Conservatory of Music. Kathryn Krause portrayed the fashionable and precocious "Miss Primness." "Impertinence," featured Sue Philip as a forward young lady.

Mood Changes.
Passing from the fantasy of the feminine mind, the Ensemble presented "There's a Meeting Here Tonight," by Dett and "Wide River," by Cass. The sixth section given by the Dance Club contained an exhibition of design in rhythm and two other stylized numbers, "Ballet" and "Valse Triste."

The next two selections by the Women's Ensemble were "I Have a Mother in the Heavens," a folk song, and "Ole Ark's a Mover-in!" by Cain.

Perhaps the most well received was a group of dances designated as the "Mississippi Suite." "Father of Waters" was dramatically portrayed by Sue Philip. Janis Marquis gave a delightful interpretation of "Creole Dances." Particularly effective was "Huckleberry Finn," realistically characterized by Claire Wallace. The suite was concluded with the group at the colorful "Mardi Gras."

Applause greeted the Women's Ensemble as they appeared for their final group of selections, two favorites from Jerome Kern, "Make Believe" and "I've Told Every Little Star."

The Dance Club concluded the program with three varied offerings, "Minuet," "Gigue," and a waltz medley.

Personnel of Organizations

Members of the organizations are: Women's Ensemble: Lilybell Buckner, Sadie Donelson, Pauline Duff, Mary Garrett, Jewell Harper, Sue Philip, Mary Ellen Tebow, Dorothy White, Elaine Williams, and Janet Wilson. Their accompanist was Betty Lou McPherson.

Dance Club: Patti Bosch, Marles Busby, Dorothy Harshaw, Sue Holt, Irma Lee Hull, Irma Jensen, Kathryn Krause, Betty Lathrom, Nylene Luyster, Janise Marquis, Dorothy June Masters, Reba Mercer, Mercedes Myers, Betty Neill, Marilyn Partridge, Sue Philip, Wren Strilen, Mary Lloyd Taul, Claire Wallace, and Elaine Woodburn. They were accompanied by Helen Louise Tebow. Mrs. Chloe Brown was in charge of costumes.

Gene Yenni, former editor of the Northwest Missourian, has recently returned from India, where he was stationed with the Signal Service division of the U. S. Army for fifteen months. He visited the College on Wednesday, May 8. Mr. Yenni, a graduate of the College, expects to continue his education in a graduate school.

Lieut. Emily Gillett Is Physiotherapy Graduate

Emily Gillett, a graduate of the College, was graduated from the school of physiotherapy at Fitzsimons General Hospital in Denver, Colorado, on Thursday, May 9.

Miss Gillett entered the Army Medical Corps last May and since then has been attending school and doing practical work. At her graduation she received the rating of Lieutenant. No definite orders have been given as yet as to where she will be stationed.

Following her graduation she spent a furlough at her home in Stanberry and visited with friends in Maryville.

Miss Dora B. Smith Attends Conference

Supervisor in Junior High
Takes part in Workshop
Meeting in Chicago.

CHICAGO, SPECIAL, May 6:—Miss Dora B. Smith, supervisor of the seventh and eighth grades and instructor in the education department, Northwest Missouri State Teachers College, attended the Conference on Workshops in Teacher Education at the University of Chicago, Wednesday through Friday, May 1, 2, and 3.

Forty-two educational leaders from midwestern colleges and universities participated in the conference. Individual problems were discussed in addition to a regularly-scheduled program of discussion. General issues in regard to the history and conducting of workshops were considered at the Wednesday sessions. On Thursday, May 2, round table discussions on the organization of workshops, including publicity, registration, and housing facilities, were held. Further round tables devoted to actual teaching techniques of workshops were scheduled on the final day's agenda, Friday.

The University of Chicago has been a pioneer in the use of workshops for summer school sessions. The workshop makes informal consideration of individual problems possible, and allows university administrator-students to exchange ideas and experiences under the direction of competent educational leaders.

Students Are Guests.
Miss Mattie Dykes of the English faculty entertained the members of the class in contemporary American literature at her apartment last night. Members of the class are Leona Downing, Clem Shively, Helen Bohysmith Davis, Jeanne Preston, Joyann Hovden, Lorraine Driver, Betty Neill, Gilbert Brown, and Thelma Hodgkin.

Apollo Boys Show Expert Musicianship

Boys of Nine to Fourteen Delight Audience Who Hear Them Sing.

The Apollo Boys' Choir, from Dallas, Texas, under the direction of Coleman Cooper, received repeated ovations at the concert the choir gave at the College, Thursday night, May 9, in the auditorium.

The choir treated a large audience to an evening of music of a type known well to few in Maryville, music written especially for voices of young boys or music written for women's voices but sung by boys. The high soprano notes, clear and flute-like, took on a quality when sung by the boy voices that was noticeably different from the same notes taken by a woman. The audience responded enthusiastically to both group and solo work.

The program was well-rounded and full, earning the respect of the professional musicians in the audience as well as delighting the average listeners. The singers showed musicianship and discipline. The boys, whose ages range from 9 to 14, won the admiration of the audience not only for their fine demonstration of musical ability, but for their personal appearance.

First Sing Sacred Music.
The choir made its appearance in the usual black and white costumes of church choir-boys and opened their program with "Veni Creator Spiritus" by Alois Bart-Schmidt and "Ave Maria" by Jacob Arcand. Following these two numbers, other sacred music made up the program preceding the intermission.

Following the intermission, the boys came back in school uniforms—dark long-trousered suits with a monogram and white laced byon collars—and presented secular music. The audience responded enthusiastically to these numbers.

The last numbers, "A Spring Symphony" by Florence Goslon and "The Glow-Worm" by Paul Linck were so heartily received that Mr. Cooper came back in response to the applause and remarked slyly, "You have evinced such edginess in the whimsical, that we are going to give you another." And the boys gave a lilted rendition of "The Arkansas Traveler."

To prove that the smallest boys could sing and that they were not just added to the choir for audience appeal, Mr. Cooper introduced the smallest youngster in the group and asked him to sing a solo. He sang beautifully and responded to an encore, completely demonstrating the point made by the director.

The Apollo Boys' Choir was founded 10 years ago by Mr. Cooper in Dallas. The boys, who come from almost every state in the union, attend school regularly in Dallas, but three weeks in the spring and three weeks in the fall they are on tour. The choir will make its first New York appearance in Carnegie Hall in November.

Mrs. Mack Jackson and her small niece, Maurine Bush, visited the College on Monday, May 6. Mrs. Jackson was formerly Miss Annette Crowe. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, both former students of the College, live on a farm near Hopkins.

Open House

President and Mrs. J. W. Jones will hold Open House for Governor and Mrs. Phil Donnelly at the College Residence, Tuesday evening, May 21, from 8:30 until 10:30 o'clock.

No invitations are being sent, but everybody is invited.

Commencement Is Near

THE ALMA MATER

Let your voices loudly ring,
Echo far and near;
Songs of praise thy children

To thy mem'ry dear.

Years may dim our recollections,
Time its change may bring;
Still thy name in fond affection,

Assisting in the Baccalaureate services will be ministers from congregations outside of Maryville. Reverend Elythe Stirlen, "The Little Minister" of Shenandoah, Iowa, will give the invocation. The Reverend L. B. Day, pastor of the Christian church at Bolckow has been chosen to read the scripture lesson. Father Andrew Kunkel, O. S. Leadership School Will Be Held Here

Training for Leaders With Recreation Group Is Being Offered.

A recreation leadership training institute will be held at the Maryville high school gymnasium May 27 to May 31, inclusive. This institute will be conducted by Mrs. Anne Livingston, a field worker for the National Recreation Association.

This will be Mrs. Livingston's second visit to Maryville. On April 9 to 9 two meetings were held at which Mrs. Livingston gave some of the aims and practices of a recreation program.

The Maryville Recreation Council arranged Mrs. Livingston's first program and will serve as sponsor for the institute. The price of admission will be one dollar for adults and fifty cents for students and entitles the person to attend all ten meetings. It is expected that many College students will take advantage of the opportunity for leadership training.

The Recreation Association was started at the close of the last war and has developed into a nationwide organization. Under the present arrangement the country is divided into zones, Missouri being in the same zone as Iowa, Kansas, and Nebraska.

Mr. Arthur Dodd is the field director for this zone and has his office in the YMOA building in Kansas City.

Mrs. Livingston has conducted the training course for professional and volunteer leaders for the past two years. Previous to that she was social recreation leader in the department of public recreation, Jacksonville, Florida, conducted state-wide leadership training institutes for five years, organized pagants and orchestral groups, and was director of the Servicemen's Pter, Miami Beach, Florida.

Ups, Downs, and Roundabouts of Gold Medal

It was just a small gold medal bearing the inscription, 1934, Class C, Piano Solo on its back and Northwest Missouri State Teachers College on its face; but it made Mr. and Mrs. George Gelvin, Maitland, two happy people, as it will probably also make happy their son, Bernard Gelvin, Honolulu, when he hears what has happened to his medal.

One day last week, the College received a letter from a Mrs. J. C. Bush, San Francisco, California, enclosing this medal and, saying that the medal had been found in San Francisco and that she was returning it to the College in the hope that it might eventually reach its owner.

"Here is a bit of a human interest story for the Northwest Missourian," said Dean M. C. Cunningham to Miss Mattie Dykes as she showed her the medal and the letter. "Maybe if you run a story about it, we can find out whose medal it is and send it to him."

Owner Is Discovered.
But Miss Dykes had another idea. She went back to the 1934 files of the newspaper and there she found that the first place in piano solo for "Class C" schools had been won by Bernard Gelvin of Maitland. By other means she discovered that Bernard Gelvin was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gelvin of Maitland; and so she put in a long distance call Wednesday morning and told Mrs. Gelvin about the medal.

By 2:30 in the afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Gelvin were in the Dean's office to see the medal and to talk with Miss Dykes about the whole matter. They had known that the son had won the contest, but they had not known that he had lost his medal. The medal was given to them, and they expect to send it at once to their son.

Studies With Mr. Velle.
Bernard Gelvin was not a student of the College, but he studied with Mr. James Velle, one time head of the Music department. He frequently played for the College quartet while Robin Lawrence, Morris Yaden, William Somerville, and Virgil Woodside sang in it. Thomas Lawrence, a graduate of the College, was responsible for Mr. Gelvin's entering the spring contests in 1934 and for his going on to the state contest in music, where he also won.

Mr. Gelvin has been at Pearl Harbor since 1942. He went there as a clerk rating examiner in the labor board and was later placed in the manager's office as assistant to the chief clerk. Nine months later he was promoted to junior administrative assistant and is now in charge of the personnel relations division at the navy yard.

Mr. Gelvin continues to devote his time to being a concert pianist. He married Miss Mildred Davis, a cellist of not, who was formerly associated with the Punahou School of Music in Honolulu and who is first cellist with the Honolulu Symphony Orchestra. Together, Mr. and Mrs. Gelvin give many programs. Recently they had dinner with Miss Marlan Kerr, who left the music faculty of the college this year to go to Honolulu to take a college position there.

Mother Made Him Practice.
Just when Mr. Gelvin lost his medal is not now known. He had been in California several years before he went to Pearl Harbor. He had lived in Los Angeles and in San Francisco, had worked in the navy yard at Mare Island, and had studied piano for two years under Madame Brumbaugh of Hollywood. Speaking of her son's success in music, Mrs. Gelvin said "with a touch of pride, 'Pa put up the money, of course; but I take some of the credit, for I stood behind him and made him practice.'"

THE COLLEGE OATH

"We will never bring disgrace to this, our College, by any act of cowardice or dishonesty. We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the College. We will revere and obey the College laws and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in others. We will transmit this College to those who come after us, greater, better, and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us.

WHEN YOU ARE INTERVIEWED

Do personal interviews frighten you? Do you know what you should do during a personal interview? The following ideas are primarily for those being interviewed for a teaching position, but the main points concern others as well.

When you go to be interviewed, have something to talk about. Act as though you are interested—be interested. Ask questions. For example, "How many pupils are there in the school?" "How many pupils in the fourth grade (or the grade you want to teach)?" "What are the playground facilities?" and "Where can I board?" There are many other questions which you would really like answered. Have your questions prepared before hand so you can keep the conversation going.

Take a letter of application with you to give to the school officials if they ask for one.

Be certain that you are well-groomed and dressed in good taste when you go to make the interview. Most school officials will judge you in poise, vigor, indications of physical and mental health, indications of personal charm, balance, and self-confidence.

Above all else, during the entire interview, you should radiate friendliness. This quality is most valuable in insuring success in teaching, as well as in other fields.

YOUR LETTER OF APPLICATION

Do you need to write a letter of application for a teaching position? What should you put into it?

A letter of application should give your name and address, written plainly. A description of yourself, including height, weight, color of eyes, and color of hair, should also be included in your letter.

Think of the questions the person to whom you are writing would be most likely to ask. Answer those questions in your letter.

What teaching experience have you had? What college degree, or how many hours of college work do you have? What are your major and minor? From what high school did you graduate? What salary are you asking? What references do you have? Do you play any musical instrument, or sing? To what organizations do you belong? Are you an officer in any organization? To what church do you belong, if any? What is your father's occupation? What grades and what subjects do you want to teach?

These are probably the major questions which the applicant should answer. If the superintendent, principal, or school board want additional information, they will write to you, come to see you, or ask you to come to see them.

One purpose of the letter of application is to get the school officials interested in having you as a teacher. Another purpose is to follow up an interview to keep yourself in the thoughts of the school officials.

There is no definite set pattern for the letter of application. It should be written in business-letter form and should be short and to the point. It should also be courteous and interesting.

NOTEWORTHY QUOTATIONS

"The very idea of the power and right of the people to establish government presupposes the duty of every individual to obey the established government."—George Washington.

"Not one drunken driver in a hundred knows he is drunk. He thinks he is driving better than ever before in his life."

Registration for Summer Term.

Missouri Methodist Student Conference
By Betty Neill
Disregarding such elemental things as showers, think of a week end at the Lake of the Ozarks—deep on a wooded hillside peculiar to the Ozark region, and located not so far as to be unable to catch glimpses of white water through the trees. Though the woods are especially thick, gravelly paths wind around past cabins, and lodges with names like Mark Twain, The Bluebird, Arrowhead, and the large mess hall, Ara-Bry. Such was the setting for the Missouri Methodist Conference, the purpose of which was to bring together Methodist students and adult leaders, and others, from all over Missouri, for fellowship, information, and inspiration. The principal figure of the occasion was Dr. Amos A. Thornburg of St. Louis, and the theme, "The Crisis of Our Age."
The gathering began officially Friday evening about five o'clock with registration about five o'clock. Friday evening, May 3. After supper in the long mess hall, we were informally (as everything else was done) addressed by Dr. Thornburg in respect to an attitude that embodied these two thoughts: We never go back, but forward to God; and religion must be contemporary—as the day and the hour: also it must needs be real, embodying the creative power of idea and act. The fact that it was a little rainy outside and also a little cool influenced, I think, the radiation of warmth of the fellowship gathering inside.
Saturday, after emerging from warm covers into the cold damp air of the cabin at 6:30 (6:30 for some of us, as we took seriously the first bell-ringing as rung by a guy from Cape Girardeau who had a daylight savings watch; he awoke thoroughly at 6:30 and rang it again)—we met together for "morning watch" and breakfast. The remainder of the morning as spent in discussion groups, an address and a short business meeting after a walk in the woods. At three o'clock in the afternoon we all went aboard the "Gov. McClurg" for a pleasant two hours on the lake. The "Gov." had music, a smooth deck, a fountain, chairs, and little round tables around the deck. The day ended for us with a wiener roast at six o'clock. We were sorry not to have been able to stay until the adjournment Sunday noon.
The schools represented by the hundred and fifty students were the University of Missouri, Stephens and Christian, of Columbia; and the colleges located at Warrensburg, Kirksville, Maryville, Cape Girardeau, Fayette, Rolla, Marshall; and Lincoln University at Jefferson City. In this representation there were three Chinese students, a negro, a Japanese-American, a Norwegian, and a Costa Rican. The students attending from Maryville S. T. C. were Herbert Hackman, Dorothy White, Glenadine MacDonald, Johan Hovden, Helen Haller, Betty Lou McDonald, and Betty Neill, accompanied by the Rev. Robert Holliday of the M. E. church.

More Foreign Students Come to United States
COLLEGEVILLE, PENN., (ACP) The number of students from outside the United States who are enrolled in the higher education institutions of the country in 1945-46 total 10,445, according to the annual census made by the committee on Friendly Relations Among Foreign Students at Ursinus College. There are students found in every state of the Union, registered in 738 different institutions.
The country with the largest number is Canada with a total of 1,613, in contrast to 852 for 1944-45. China is second in rank with 1,298, in comparison with 823 last year. There are students from a total of 99 different countries.
Of the total of 10,341 received in time to separate by men and women, there are 6,973 men and 3,368 women.
From Latin America have come 4,638 students, a marked increase over the previous year, and continuing a trend that became sharply evident during the war years. Now, however, with improving travel conditions, students from other parts of the globe are resuming well-beaten paths made by former generations. Many have arrived from Europe during a period too recent to be included in statistics for the current year.
In regard to distribution by states, New York leads with 1,051, California with 907, Michigan with 690, and Pennsylvania with 592.
All indications point to a marked increase of foreign students, subject to limitations of available housing and study facilities in overcrowded universities and colleges.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—(ACP)—The newspaper of the University of Louisville announces the formation of a Flying Club. This type of club has become popular throughout the country with the influx of Air Corps veterans to the college, but this particular organization is distinguished by the low rates which it offers to its members. Three dollars an hour cover expenses for instruction in contrast to the eight to ten dollar fees usually charged at pilot training schools. Two of these three dollars go for operation expenses and the other goes to the instructor. So far the club has a 65 H. P. Taylorcraft ready for its members' use. Its president was formerly the first pilot of a P-29.

THREE POEMS

The Night
Darkness
Descends slowly
Over town and country
And forms a veil which rises with
The sun.

Peaceful Sleep
Kittens
Curled up in balls
Sleep blissfully unaware
Of danger which may soon disturb
Their peace.

The Campus
Grass that rustles on the ground,
Trees that whisper in the breeze,
Sun that looks down from above,
Sky that peeks through clouds of fleece,
All these I see.
Tall and stately, rising high,
Alma Mater with her towers
Looks down on the campus green
And smiles, through either sun or showers,
Each day at me.

Inherent

It made you believe that perhaps
Things ran more according to plan after all.
Else why could they sit there—he and she and the younger,
Laughing and talking of time-worn subjects
Now a little past endearment even to her the younger—
Talk which she would recognize as theirs
Were she to hear it repeated by a king's family.
Talk which might come to her though its initiators be dead
For ten, twenty, thirty years.
It was this talk that kept the two and she
From ever striking a balance and a feeling for one another.
But more often than not
There seemed between the man and woman more love and sentiment
Than they would guess
Or she should care to prove.
Else why would they sit there opening pages,
Closely—forever?
Why cover up the trails of grief
Why layers of the present—a necessity
To bear what had been death them, and yet
What else but their own self-natures with
All their talk keeping next its mark?
Sorely they had felt much, borne much,
Gone much, done much,
To need such preservation.
Had God let them be content
To peruse their old familiar ways,
And let them pity only those who had known
Some heartbreak no greater than
Their own? Else why could common talk
Kill hate, revenge, even
Grief itself, and put them back
On a road much simpler followed,
Much more known than that which would seem,
From deeper understanding,
To be the only path evident—
The path leading to a forest
Whereon a signpost shouted Human Frailty?

There is that within man
Which knows better than its confiner
The resistance, the love necessary,
And this it is
That regulates and schemes and so
Makes life tick of the minutes
Evenly and in a manner
Representative and worthy of Man.

The Stroller

Sixty seniors in a row,
To face the world in a week or so.

Some wish fate to give them fame,
Some wish merely to change their name.

But though all will reap of fortune's stores,
They'll never be seniors anymore.

"Sixty seniors in a row"

My, that's a nice lot of seniors. And aren't they a proud bunch, too! On all sides we see them strutting and prancing about in their Pedagogical Weeds (caps and gowns, that is... that's a joke, Son!) Well, the Stroller believes they've a right to be proud. He'd be, too, in their shoes. Just think two more years and a few delays worked off and ye ol' Stroller may be a proud senior, too. Happy Day! (He's been working for his degree since 1917.)

But let's come back to our four year folks. This is definitely their day. And each senior has worked hard and burned many a candle to achieve it. The Stroller extends congratulations to each graduate—especially to each perennial senior who has finally made it!

"To face the world in a week or so."

Yes, Seniors, it's just that near for most of you. And it means so many things. It means bidding farewell to college friends and college days. It means parting with an excellent staff of instructors who with guiding watch-care and generous intent have assisted you so wholeheartedly in obtaining that most priceless of endowments—a liberal education. It means that life is beckoning you away from strong family ties. It means that you are "on your own," but because of your own diligent efforts and the sacrifices of loved ones, you are perfectly equipped and quite capable of living life to its fullest. You are ready for your Commencement.

"Some wish fate to give them fame."

The Stroller has long wanted to give this crop of "high and mighty" seniors some advice and here goes. Ahem!

Seniors, this "fame" business might become a "booby" trap (first known practical application of this expression). Some how each one of us believes that he is the one who is going to be different. And too often when we see ourselves falling into the same old life patterns of the folks down the road we become discouraged and disheartened, thinking that we have failed. Nonsense! (Get set, you "Holier than thous," because here it comes!)

The Stroller believes that if one expects ever to meander through the Halls of Fame, let him forget himself and do for others. Let him become a teacher!

"Some wish merely to change their name"

Come on, girls! Fess up! We know that you've got your cap set for that man. The Stroller hears remarks every day: "Oh, if Johnny could just get out!" (let's be charitable, shall we?), "Say, I tell you it really worked. Hank sees now that it will mean a lot less income tax," or "If Joe can just buy a suit, and if I can still get into Grandmother's wedding dress, it will be in June." Some have already taken advantage of the housing shortage and have teamed up for keeps.

To all of you hopefuls... just remember that Uncle Jed down Spoon River way "lows as how there will be plenty of wives on the prowl this year."

"But though all will reap of fortune's store,
They'll never be seniors anymore."

In the voice of exultation there will be found an accompanying note of sorrow. It is no easy matter to leave behind for years of Bearcat associations.

But the Stroller would change to a happier mood. He predicts success for every senior. He secretly investigated (don't tell Congress) every one and not an egg "candle."

The Stroller salutes the Senior Class of 1946! He knows that they have obtained from their college career:

"Some little grace,
One kindly thought,
One aspiration, as yet unfelt;
One gleam of faith to brave the thickening ills of life.
One glimpse of brighter skies beyond the gathering mist—
To make this life worth while,
An heaven... a surer heritage."

Many Veterans Are Working in Training Plan

What the work of the Veterans' Administration means to Nodaway county is illustrated in the assistance it is giving the approximately 65 veterans who are taking on-the-job training and the 155 veterans who are attending the State Teachers College under VA supervision, Kenneth M. Davis, assistant state service officer, said today.

The on-the-job training, part of the GI Bill of Rights, enables the veteran to receive practical training in the trade of his choice and at the same time receive an allowance from the government in addition to the wages paid by the employer.

Davis explained that under its on-the-job program, the government will pay the veteran an amount to make up the difference between apprentice and journeyman wages in his particular trade. The employer pays him the apprentice wages and the government pays the rest, not to exceed $90 a month for a man with dependents. This is the same amount received by a veteran with dependents who is going to school under the GI Bill of Rights.

In Various Counties
The Nodaway county veterans taking part in this program are working in garages, shops, offices, and a wide variety of other businesses. They may spend as many months in learning a trade as they spent in the service, not in excess of four years.

Veterans who wish on-the-job training should report to Davis, who will fill out their application for forwarding to the Veterans' Administration regional office in Kansas City. He is in the selective service office in the county courthouse every Monday and Wednesday.

Attend Teachers College
Of the veterans attending the State Teachers College, 142 are under the GI Bill of Rights and 13 are those with a disability which entitles them to payment under Public Law 16. The disabled veteran-student with dependents may receive as much as $115 a month.

In Western Missouri, a total of 25,477 have applied for instruction either in schools or on the job, Davis said.

D-Day Means Defeat for Dandelions at University

D-Day at the University of Kansas means only one thing—defeat for dandelions at the hands, or rather knives, nail files, and more conventional dandelion diggers, of students and faculty members.

The traditional event this year yielded 2,369 bushels of dandelions picked from the campus lawns after two hours of digging were interrupted by rain. University officials estimate that the students have saved them about $1,400 in dandelion digging expense in return for the 90 minutes of work lost by dismissing classes at 4 p. m.

Buildings and grounds workers had the task of removing the 10-ton stack of wilted weeds from the campus, and repairing the turf uprooted by over-zealous diggers.

Beta Beta Chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma of the Southwest Missouri State Teachers College at Springfield, held its annual Founder's Day banquet and dance, April 28.

A dance for married couples at the University of Texas lately which was scheduled to last until midnight, ended at 11:15 when the couples had all gone home, some of them, no doubt, to give Junior his bottle. Times, indeed have changed.

Alumnus of College Is Named Dean in Chicago

Leland L. Medsker, a graduate of the College, has been appointed dean of Wright Junior College, Chicago. For the past eight years he has served as assistant director of the bureau of occupational research and guidance of the Chicago public schools. His new duties will include co-ordinating the work of all other branches of the Chicago City Junior College.

Mr. Medsker, after having graduated from the College, received his Master of Arts degree from Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois.

A lonely vet at the University of Texas who wanted to meet a girl decided to call up a girl's dormitory and ask for "Ruth." Surely, he thought, there will be some girl living there named Ruth. There was a Ruth, but she wasn't in, and her roommate took the call. Pleadingly, the vet presented his case to the roommate. She wasn't interested, but he called back the next night and the next. And now the vet and the roommate are having coke dates—which only goes to show that it never hurts to try.

University of Texas Has New Herbarium Specimens

AUSTIN, TEXAS — (ACP) — Thanks to the wartime avocation of a Texas high school science teacher, the University of Texas herbarium has received specimens of about 400 different varieties of rare plants and herbs from Alaska and the Aleutian Islands.

The collection was made by C. L. York, former teacher of science in the high schools of Lyle, Longview and Gladewater, Texas, while serving as an Air Corps officer for 34 months on Alaska and Adak in the Aleutians and at Anchorage, Alaska. York, discharged as a captain last February, has presented his collection to the University upon his return there to finish work toward his Ph.D.

None of the species collected by York was contained in the herbarium previously, and at least one is so rare that there is only one other known specimen in American herbaria. This is a low, spider-like plant known as Androsace Alaska, which has pale pink blossoms and spreads its tentacles over an area about the size of a teacup. York found his lone specimen growing in the rock at the top of a rugged mountain peak.

Covered-Dish Goes to Banquet
"Bring your own table service; bring no desserts." Thus Craig high school announced its alumni banquet, which was held in the high school auditorium on Monday evening, May 6. Evidently it was one of these covered-dish affairs as a means of having a banquet in which food difficulties are solved by those who attend.

The A.C.E. annual May Morning Breakfast will be held May 19 at the Hotel Lyleville in honor of the seven graduating members.

Seventy-five veterans are now enrolled in auto and aviation mechanics at Pittsburg, Kansas, State Teachers College. This is one of the few colleges in the Middle West that offers auto and aviation mechanics to veterans under the G. I. Bill of Rights.

The academic procession will start from Residence Hall, where the Senior Class will form a double line in alphabetical order. At the Library, they will be joined by the faculty, who will follow them to the Administration building. There the line will be joined by the Board of Regents, the Dean, the President Emeritus, the President, and the Governor; and the Seniors, led by Jeanne Stewart, president of the Junior Class, will proceed down the left aisle to the front rows of seats in the auditorium and the remainder of the line to the platform. All will stand until after the invocation, which will be led by Dr. Uel W. Lamkin.

Mr. Bodman Will Play.
The program will begin with a violin solo by Mr. Lyman Bodman of the faculty of the Conservatory of Music, accompanied by Miss Judith Thom, also of the Conservatory. Mr. Bodman will play the "Adelaide Concerto" by Mozart.

The Honorable Phil Donnelly, governor of Missouri, will deliver the commencement address to the graduating class. At the close of the address, Dean M. C. Cunningham will present the candidates for degrees and President J. W. Jones will confer the degrees. The program will close with the announcement of honors and awards.

Miss Thom will play the recessional, and the Governor and the president of the College will lead down the right aisle, followed by the platform group and then by the graduates, thus indicating the close of the fortieth commencement of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College.

expressed their pleasure in the work of Mr. Robb and Mr. Bodman, who have given their time freely just for the sake of developing a community symphonic orchestra, not for any remuneration they were receiving. During the two hours of hard rehearsal each week, their enthusiasm was contagious. Most of the members were on time at each meeting, and many came early for a few minutes of extra practice on their own parts or help from Mr. Robb or Mr. Bodman. The conductors of both the Com-

Here's Help for the Housing Shortage

Because of a newly developed asphalted-gypsum core, the new water and weather-resistant U.S.G. Sheathing "weathers all weather" — piled unprotected on the job or nailed to the framework. An average small house is sheathed in eight man hours — speeding construction and saving lumber.

CHICAGO, ILL. — A new sheathing with a recently developed asphalted-gypsum, weather-resistant core is one of the new answers to the lumber shortage.

Designed to free more lumber for framing and to extend available materials to more new housing units, the new sheathing, produced by the United States Gypsum Company, can be installed on an average small house in eight man hours.

Tests under adverse conditions prove the new product materially superior in resisting the damaging effects of weather — piled on the job or nailed to framework. There is also no buckling, no warping, no opening up of joints when it dries out.

After a giant test "weatherometer" shot a driving spray of water against panels of wall sheathings of different types, simulating the equivalent of 5½ years of average rainfall — the U.S.G. Sheathing showed a water absorption of 3.4% by weight. This was actually only 1/12th of the amount absorbed by wood sheathing during the same exposure.

Sheathing costs can be cut from ¼ to ½ because of handling ease. The new sheathing does not need special measuring and saving — it can be scored and snapped right on the studs.

Veterans' Administration Man Comes to Maryville

Lieut. E. O. Hammond, superintendent of the Plattsburg schools the past several years until he volunteered for military service under leave of absence from the position, resigned the position to accept a position with the Veterans Administration.

He was at first stationed in that work in Kansas City, but has been assigned to Maryville, to the Veterans Administration representative there, with former service men in college here, and with others desiring to confer with him on Veterans Administration matters.

Mrs. Hammond, who has been primary teacher and principal of the Plattsburg Grade School several years, has declined re-election to the position, and Mr. and Mrs. Hammond may sell their residence in Plattsburg and she and her mother, Mrs. Jennie C. Lankford, join Mr. Hammond at Maryville.

Miss Tebow Presents A Concert at Seminary

The program consisted of three parts, "Sonata in D Major" by Handel, "Concerto in E minor" by Mendelssohn, "Berceuse" by Lawrence Townsend, "Chant" by White-Kreiser, "Nobody Knows de Trouble I've Seen" from the "Canebrake" by Samuel Gardner, "Hopak" by Moussorgsky-Rachmaninoff.

Rev. Mr. Kohl Says Graduates Must Grow Mentally, Spiritually

Seniors of the Horace Mann high school were told Sunday, May 12, at baccalaureate exercises that henceforth their growth largely will be mental and spiritual. The message was brought to the seniors at the morning worship service at the First Christian church by the Rev. D. Franklin Kohl, minister.

Mr. Kohl said in part: "Every living thing was intended to grow. It is evidently a part of God's plan that growth should be a continuing part of our lives. This is the one activity that we share completely with every other living thing in the world."

Take Part in Growth
"For sixteen or seventeen years the members of this class have been growing. Their physical growth has been obvious. Each year they have added to their height and strength. They have taken pride in their growth physically, and that is as it should be. On the athletic field they have exhibited their strength and stamina in competition with others, and their physical ability has been a source of satisfaction."

"These people have grown mentally. There was a time, not so many years ago, when even simple words were read with difficulty and the simplest arithmetic problems were hard to solve. They have come a long way since that day. Today they have reached a place of attainment where an accredited institution of learning is happy to give them a diploma as a token of their mental growth and achievement. This acknowledgment of their mental growth is a satisfying thing to these students."

Sympathies Broadened
"These young men and women have grown spiritually. Their experiences of the past few years have deepened their understanding and broadened their sympathies. They have come into closer contact with the God of the universe. These spiritual experiences have led them where they have not walked before and shown them things they had not seen before. This growth in the realm of the spirit is a satisfying thing."

"It is natural that one should also of Barkatze, Pi Omega Pi, band, chorus, and women's ensemble during the past year. She plans to teach next fall and then get married."

Harold Hutcheson, Maryville, has a double major: physical education and commerce. He starred on the Bearcat team, before entering service and after his return from the service; was a member of the "M" club, and of the Veterans' Club. He plans to teach at Truro, Iowa near Des Moines, next fall.

Herbert Hackman, St. Joseph, has a major in social science and a minor in geography. The Student Christian Association, band and the Community Chorus are the activities in which he has participated.

Herschel Jennings, a former student of the College and a member of the Bearcat Squadron, has been made traffic manager for the Duluth Air Lines, Inc. with offices in Chicago.
